Colson Pleads Guilty, Will Assist The Ellsberg Break-In Prosecution

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, June 3 (IHT).—Charles Colson, former, special counsel to President Nixon, pleaded guilty today to a charge that he obstructed justice in attempting to influence the outcome of Daniel Ellsberg's 1973 trial for the leaking of the Pentagon papers to news media.

Related charges against Colson in connection with the 1971 break in at the office of Mr. Ellsberg's Former psychiatrist were dropped. In addition, spe-rial Watergate prisecutor Leon Jaworski indicated trutt other charges against the former White House aide in connection with the Watergate cover-up would also be dropped, in return for a promise by Colson to pro-

District Judge Gerhard Gesell, Colson, 42, pleaded guilty to a charge that he was "responsible for devising and implementing a scheme to defame and destroy the public image and credibility of Daniel Ellsberg and those engaged in the legal defense of Daniel Elisberg, with the intent to influence, obstruct and impede

Calls July Summit Possible

East German Leader Predicts Success for European Talks

By Hubert J. Erb

BERLIN, June 3 (AP).-Erich Honecker, East German Communist party leader, predicts a swift and successful conclusion to the European security conference being held in Geneva. He says that he is optimistic that there still could be a July summit meeting of leaders of the participating nations.

Specifically, Mr. Honecker places great emphasis on a continuing dialogue between the Soviet Union and the United States as instrumental to a continued improvement in the East-West climate in Europe.

In an interview, he said that an East German dialogue with the United States has reached the stage where there is nothing standing in the way of an exchange of ambassadors between Washington and East Berlin. Mr Honecker described the Berlin wall as military in nature. He said that "border conditions" will not change until relations among border states are changed. Personally Surprised'

Concerning the resignation of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, Mr. Honecker said, was personally surprised by the resignation of ... Mr. Brandt." Mr. Honecker added that he feels that Mr. Brandt's resignation did not result primarily from any espionage affair but had deeper underlying motives. Despite difficulties, Mr. Honecker said that the normalization process between East and West Germany should continue. He expressed a willingness to meet at an all-German summit conference with Mr. Brandt's successor, Helmut Schmidt, Mr. Honecker also stressed the importance of the four-power accord on Berlin as a stepping stone to normalization. He sald East Germany intended to take appropriate steps concerning reg-ulation of monetary exchange fees for Westerners visiting the

The interview was held in Mr. Honecker's East Berlin office. Mr. Honecker prepared answers to questions submitted in advance then permitted additional questions in a follow-up meeting. Mr. Honecker, 61, was relaxed and appeared very confident of himself and his role as successor to the late Walter Ulbricht. Concerning the Geneva-based talks on European security, in which the United States and Canada also are participants, Mr. Honecker declared;

He said that Irrael was prepared to negotiate peace with its Arab neighbors in stages, beginning with Egypt, but would not nego-

"Something has happened to this country since the Yom Kip-pur war," he said. "Even though we scored one of our greatest victories in that war, many of us have deeply troubled hearts. "We must shake off our despon-

When the confidence vote had been counted, the 52-year-old former chief of staff and ambassador to Washington stepped forward to sign his pledge of office and hand it to the Speaker of the Knesset, Yisrael Yeshayahu. With that act he became Israel's youngest premier and the first Sabra (native-born) to reach the post. He follows Mrs. Meir. Levi Eshkol, Moshe Sharett and David Ben-Gurion.

When Mr. Rabin signed his pledge of office, Mrs. Meir rose from her seat at the head of the horseshoe - shaped government table and walked quietly to a vacant seat in the second row of the Labor party desks. Moscow's Role Seen as Crucial

Mediation by Russia, China In Vietnam Truce Described

TIASHINGTON, June 3 (NTT). -Moscow and Peking played mediating roles in helping Washing-ton reach the 1972 Vietnam settlement with Hanoi, according to an article in the current issue of Foreign Policy magazine.

The article, written by former York Times correspondent Tad Szulc, depicted Moscow's mediating role as crucial. It said that Henry Kissinger, during his secret journey to Moscow in April, 1972, used Soviet leaders to convey to Hanoi "a concession of enormous magnitude"-that Hanoi would not be called upon to withdraw its forces from South Vietnam as part of an overall settlement. The final peace agreement makes no specific reference to North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam.

During President Nixon's visit to Moscow in May, 1972, Mr. Szulc wrote. Soviet leaders told Mr. Nixon that they did not like American policies in Vietnam but said in effect that there was nothing they could do about the situation. Again, Mr. Kissinger, who was then the President's national security adviser transmitted an American compromise to Hanoi through the Russians-one proposing formation of a com-mission of Viet Cong, Saigon and neutralist elements to supervise eventual elections.

In June, according to Mr. Szulc, Mr. Kissinger went secretly to Peking and presented the American position to Premier Chou En-lai. The premier answered that he would not press Hanoi one way or another on a settlement. But the next month, the article said, there were indications that Chairman Mao Tsetung had told the French foreign minister that he had advised Viet Cong leaders to soften their desident Nguyen Van Thieu's resignation as the price of a settle-

· Secret peace proposals by the United States were more conciliatory than the public proposals. Specifically, Mr. Kissinger hinted to the North Vietnamese privately in Paris as early as May, 1971, that the United States would not demand that a settlement specifically call for withdrawal of Hanoi's forces in South Vietnam. At this time, Mr. Nixon was publicly demanding "mutual withdrawals." Mr. Kissinger was concerned that Mr. Nixon might revert to a hard line on a Vietnam settlement after the presidential elections and told his aides that he wanted to "lock him irrevocably into a decision" before the 1972 Mr. Kissinger was trying to convince the President to proceed

Less significant on the national scene but a force in the key province of Quebec is Real Caouette, 56, head of the Social Credit party, which had 15 seats in the last Parliament, all from Quebec, and which supported Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Trudeau, perhaps encouraged by a Gallup Poll show-ing that 46 percent of those giving an opinion preferred Mr. Trudeau for prime minister, against only 22 percent for Mr. Stanfield, has taken the personal approach on the campaign trail -from Newfoundland through the central prairies to British

Inflation, Leadership

Mr. Stanfield pounds on the theme of inflation, which reached a dismaying 10.4 percent in the last year under Mr. Trudeau's government. "Inflation is the problem," Mr. Trudeau says, in speech after speech, "but leadership is the issue."

Mr. Trudeau tries to turn the question of inflation back upon the opposition, which voted down a proposed budget that among other things would have abolished a 12 percent sales tax on shoes and clothing-and thus ousted the government.

On the streets of Vancouver, campaigner Trudeau stopped a woman who was coming out of a department store with a package. You wouldn't have had to pay sales tax on that if we hadn't been defeated," he said to her. He poked at the parcel.

Like Mr. Stanfield, Mr. Lewis, as spokesman for the New Democratic party, has attacked Mr.

"In 1968, he was the bubbling swinger," Mr. Lewis said in Toronto, evoking Mr. Trudeau's image at that time, as a funloving bachelor prime minister.

Peru Party Banned; Official Is Exiled

LIMA, Peru, June 3 (AP).-A major political party was out-lawed in Peru and one of its leaders ordered deported last weekend in what observers interpreted as a toughening stand by President Juan Velasco against critics of his military regime.

The action was taken against Accion Popular, a party of moderare leftist views, founded by ex-President Fernando Belaunde Terry, whose constitutional gov-ernment was overthrown by Mr. Velasco five years ago. The party has been demanding that Peru return to constitutional government. Its secretary-general, Javier Orlandini, was ordered deported.

Portuguese Clergy Attacke For Supporting Dictators

By Paul Hofmann

LISBON, June 3 (NYT).—The church in this Catholic nation is being torn by charges that bishops and priests collaborated with the former authoritarian regime and even with the secret police. Since the military coup of April 25, which overthrew the government, of Premier Marcello Caetano, calls for "soul-searching" within the church have been issued by pastoral councils and other groups in the clergy and

In one of the most radical statements published so far, more than 500 Catholics meeting in Oporto, the country's second city. urged all the bishops to resign.

Hierarchy Accused

The Oporto declaration accused the church hierarchy of having remained silent about the oppression, police tortures and colonial wars under the former regime.

The statement demanded pub-lic denunciation of all members of the clergy who had cooperated with the secret police. The armed forces movement that engineered the coup immediately disbanded the secret police and arrested known members. Almost 1,000 former secret police officers and agents are in prison awaiting trial, but many are believed to be still at large.

The group in Oporto charged that "with rare exceptions, the present Portuguese bishops have collaborated with the former regime, both by carrying out its orders or defending its ideology, and by deciding not to denounce its many insults to human dignity, which ranged from providing moral cover for war to open protection of capitalist

Study Finds Food-Price Ris Trails General Inflation Rat

WASHINGTON, June 3 (UPI) Consumers in many parts of the world finally are getting some relief from last year's boom in food prices, an Agriculture De-partment report indicates.

While the report showed that food prices in 14 major capital cities generally rose between March and May, it also showed that, for the first time in more than a year food-orice increases in "several major economies" have been smaller than inflationary gains in other consumer products. "In general, many of the factors that led to higher prices last year are less likely to dominate the market this year," department officials said.

They said that large crops in many major producing countries are primarily responsible for the improved consumer outlook

Median Prices The survey of prices of 14 separate food items in the 14 world capitals indicated that median prices for 10 of the items-including boneless striom steak, pork chops and bacon—were higher than in March. Only two foods, boneless chuck roast and eggs

That has been reflected not only in the strongly worded letter to the President warning him that noncompliance might be grounds for impeachment, but in the lopsided votes to issue additional subpoenas and in plans to issue

But except for the pressure of public opinion or the ultimate power of removal suggested by Rep. Danielson, the committee staff has no effective way to force compliance. As the committee staff noted in a memorandum before the issuance of the subpoenas, "If the President refuses to comply, the practical difficulties of enforcing the subpoens may well be insurmountable."

The usual practice for a committee in the case of a person disobeying a subpoena is to re-port the action to the House, setting forth the circumstances of the refusal and recommending the adoption of a contempt resolution or order.

But on the basis of their experience in reading the mood of the Senate, the experts estimated that the number of senators now "leaning toward" Mr. Nixon's removal is probably just over 50, and conceivably as high as 55. Sixty-seven votes are needed to remove Mr. Nixon from office if the House sent over a bill of impeachment. Some of those interviewed believe the figure is still well below 50.

The bulk of the anti-Nixon vote, in the view of most of the appraisers, would come from the Senate's 43 Northern Democrats. including men like Edmund Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Southern Democrats like James Eastland of Mississippi, James Allen of Alabama and Russell Long of Louisiana are viewed as likely supporters of Mr. Nixon along with Republican conservatives and moderates like Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Robert Talt jr. of Ohio.

So far none has indicated a position, but the experts agree unanimously that Mr. Nixon's position has been worsening steadily in recent months, as a result of publication of the White House transcripts and of his continued refusal to comply fully with the requests of the House Judiclary Committee and of Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski for added information on the Four months ago, a similar survey put the probable anti-Nixon figure at 5 to 10 votes less than today.

Margin of Doubt

The most significant development since the last survey is the weakening of support for the President among senators who still said they would vote against removing him. Many are far less confident of his innocence today and make it clear that it would take much new evidence to push them across the margin of

Four months ago, one Southern Democrat said he did not see any evidence to justify voting to remove the President. This same senator said last week, "As of now I'd vote no. But I'm more doubtful than before. I'd be inclined to hear the arguments now. There's no doubt he's lost ground; the tapes hurt. As of now I'd vote against impeachment because it's not beyond a reasonable doubt." A Republican with a good record in predicting votes said, "Maybe the anti-Nixon vote is still not more than 34 or 40, but more people have questions who didn't have before. So far, the numbers may not have changed much, but a lot of solid Nixon votes are now less solid."

Colson's guilty plea reduced the number of defendants in the Elisberg case break-in trial to four, including former top White House aide John Ehrlichman and three of the original Watergate burglars, Gordon Liddy, Bernard Barker and Eugenio Martinez. Charges against another defendant had been dropped previously.

In his guilty plea, Colson told the court: "My motives and purwere to neutralize Dr. Ellsberg as an anti-war speaker . . . It didn't matter to me that he was facing serious criminal charges."

Deputy special prosecutor William Merrill said that the scheme involved "what can only be described as a scurrilous and libelous memorandum" written about Mr. Ellsberg and his lawyers and leaked to the news media. Mr. Merrill added that Colson want-ed to have the Elsberg case "tried in the newspapers." deputy prosecutor said that the burglary of the psychiatrist's office was "just an extension of an attempt to get dirt on Ellsberg."

Two Indictments On March 7, Colson was indicted on two counts of conspiring to violate the civil rights of Mr. Elisberg's psychiatrist, charges carrying a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. On March 1, he had been indicted on two counts of conspiracy and obstruction of justice in Watergate cover-up, charges carrying a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $15,000 fine. These indictments will be quashed in re-

People from every part of France—generals, veterans, businessmen, professional men, shopkeepers and farmers-are making the trip at their own expense. The first group will stay for 14 days, the second for a week, the third for four days. Mr. Roncoli said that at least three-quarters of them were in the Resistance during the war.

Mr. Roncoli, who conceived of Operation Overlord 74-named after the invasion—is an officer in the French reserves. But, at 35, the resident of Epinay-sous-Senart, southeast of Paris, has never been in combat.

"It is in the war of ideas." he said, "that I hope always to be a fighter. We must revive ideals of love and life. That's what we are doing here." The group that arrived in New York by liner last week left for Washington yesterday to meet with the 400 who are flying there. The two contingents will go to Arlington National Cemetery to place flowers on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and they plan tributes to Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was the supreme Allied commander, and Gen. of he Army George C. Marshall, chief of staff in World War II.

To Mayor Walter Washington in the nation's capital and to Mayor Abe Beame in New York, Operation Overlord 74 will present a coffer filled with letters of appreciation from the leaders and citizens of France.

A Steady Course for Europe

the annual call of Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., to legislate a large unilateral cut in the 300,000-man American force in Europe. With the Mideast mercifully receding as an Issue in separating the Atlantic nations, it would be unwise to subject NATO to a harsh new blow affecting not only the quality of Atlantic relations but the security of the alliance. Then, East-West talks on reducing forces in East and West Europe are proceeding in Vienna. For the United States alone to pull the plug on West Europe, even as the talks have proven to be an effective vehicle for allied consultation and joint East-West exploration of the complex issues involved, would be, we believe, little short of desertion. Moreover, Mr. Nixon is about to go to Moscow: He is enough in the soup for reasons of his own making to make eminently unwise a move further reducing the general authority he brings to the sum-

The European allies can, indeed, be vexing critters. All too often they fail to act on what would seem to be their own self-interest in making it easier for the United States to remain a faithful ally—although recently. it should be noted, the West Germans have taken major steps in one sensitive area, offsetting the dollars lost by the United States in keeping its troops in West Germany. The question, however, is whether the United States can afford to indulge the fatigue and irritation which Europeans sometimes induce. We believe the answer is no. The Atlantic relationship remains America's funcamental overseas tie, strengthened by links of culture and tradition. But it is sustainable only by constant attention to Europe's welfare and independence. Europe came out

This is a bad time for the Senate to heed of World War II devastated and unable thereafter to care adequately for itself in the big-power world. This is at once Europe's burden and America's. It makes it all the more necessary for the United States, in such a critical matter as the presence of military forces, to act in concert with Europe and not by itself.

Sen. Mansfield quite properly believes that the level of U.S. forces in Europe ought to reflect the improvements in political relations which travel under the general name of détente. Détente can proceed, however, only if Europeans have the confidence which those forces impart. There is nothing magical militarily about a given level of forces, but there is something "magical" politically: The current level has come to represent the ateadiness of the American guarantee. It is psychological, but psychology, after all, is central to politics.

Soviet-American détente, as the Europeans well know, is still in an early and tentative state. Europeans can also see that the SALT talks, which compose the basic framework of their security, are in a particularly tentative state. The economic uncertainties bred by world inflation add to European anxieties. In such circumstances, it is really quite wrong to look at the U.S. troop level in Europe as though it were the only card in play. In the absence of a decision to demobilize any troops brought home, moreover. a strong case can be made for leaving them in Europe, where they do double duty, political as well as military.

The House turned down a Mansfield-type amendment the other day by a substantial margin. We hope the Senate will do the same. This is a good time to tell the world America is seeking a steady course.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Facing the Oil Threat

Members of the international oil cartelthe Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries—are concerned about the way world inflation is cutting into the real increase in income they achieved by quadrupling crude oil prices. That enormous increase itself exacerbated world inflation; if the oil producers now tried to catch up by raising their prices still higher, they would only make the inflationary spiral spin faster.

To escape this dilemma-and shift the onus to the private oil companies-OPEC is now considering a plan to raise oil taxes rather than prices when the present posted price of crude oil expires July 1. The cartel's secretary-general, Abderrahman Khene, has said a tax increase would enable the oil-exporting countries to "reap the windfall profits" now accruing to Western oil companies. Tax increases of the kind some OPEC members want to impose on the oil companies could yield them $30 billion or more-on top of the increase of about $70 billion they have already gained in 1974 alone.

It would be ironic indeed if the oil companies, having spent a fortune in advertising and public relations campaigns to convince Western voters and legislators that their profits were not excessive, should now see those profits siphoned off by the OPEC countries. The big international oil companies clearly have far more leverage in their home countries than in the Middle East and North Africa.

Until now the oil companies have had little or no motivation to resist the oil cartel's skyrocketing prices, which provided a benanza for both oil companies and oli-exporting countries, with Western consumers paying the bills. But if the OPEC countries should now deprive the oil companies of their profits, the companies would soon discover their common interest with the oilconsuming countries.

The possibility that OPEC will again raise oil taxes and prices, and cut production to reinforce such a move, emphasizes the necessity of greater Western cooperation to prevent world monetary chaos. Even if the oil-exporting states increase oil taxes alone. the additional flow of billions of dollars to the Middle East would further jeopardize an already perilous international financial situation. But the Western countries will be unable to restrain the buildup of capital in the oil-exporting countries unless they develop a cooperative program for conserving oil and increasing alternative sources of energy.

Such a program is emerging from the energy coordinating group, set up in Washington last February. The meeting of the group in Brussels later this month should show progress toward long-range goals for production research and sharing. It is also essential that the consuming countries achieve closer collaboration to deal with immediate risks-such as a threat of production cuts by OPEC to firm up softening oll prices. Should that happen, it is crucial that the Western countries not scramble and panic again, as they did when the Araba first launched their oll weapon last fall. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Although the government's tough tactics. especially the imprisonment of thousands of strike leaders, are open to criticism, there is little question that Mrs. Gandhi's firm stand has staved off intolerable new inflationary pressures. Had New Delhi bowed to the demands of two million rail workers for a doubling of their wages, the resultant scramble for comparable increases in other sectors could have wrecked the struggling Indian economy.

Vietnam: Peace With Honor

By Anthony Lewis

VEW YORK—The United States bombed North Vietnam over Christmas, 1972, in order to persuade South Vietnam to accept the truce agreement. By "brutalizing" Hanoi, as Gen. Alexander Haig put it to Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon, America aimed to convince President Thicu that he would be militarily secure after

That conclusion emerges irresistibly from a remarkable study of American negotiating tactics in the years leading up to the signing of the Vietnam agreement in January, 1973. The account is by Tad Szulc. a former New York Times correspondent: it appears in the new issue of the magazine Foreign Policy

The article reflects access to the previously unpublished documents, giving the first-hand flavor of such things as the Haig-Thieu talk. But its significance, which is considerable, lies not in juicy details but in the picture it gives of the whole sweep of an extended diplomatic event. Szulc is spare in drawing his own inferences: he less the reader draw hem from his powerful array of

Key Concession

The concession that eventually made agreement possible, according to this account, was made secretly by the United States in April, 1972-in Moscow. Henry Kissinger toid Leonid Brezhnet that the United States would accept a cease-fire without demanding withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops that had been in the South before April 1.

The question that leaps to mind is why the United States waited so long, through so many years and deaths, to make that concession. Szulc says that as early as 1970 a National Security Council study advised Kissinger that Hanoi would never agree to remove its troops from the South. The answer indicated here is that the prospect of the 1972 election is what concentrated Kissinger's mind-and perhaps persuaded his master to give him a freer hand. Kiesinger is inevitably the main focus of this article. His nego-tlating techniques are laid bare. To a notable extent, they amount to deception: telling each side what it wants to hear In Vietbam, the technique failed in the end-after a last virtuoso display of two-faced tactics.

In May, 1972, during the Nixon-Brechney summit, Kissinger confided further American concessions to the Russians. In June he went to Peking and, with Cnou En-lat. took a conciliatory philosophical line toward Hanol.

Visits Few

Then in July he vicited Thien in Salgon-and sounded very different. The Nixon administration had to talk peace because of the upcoming election, he said: it would make seemingly attractive proposals, knowing that Hanot would reject them. After the election it would be a "different story": America would not hesitate to bring Hanoi to its knees. He recommended that Thicu plan an invasion of North Victnam after the election.

Thieu was not told about the American negotiating concession. Kissinger was coviously confident that he could bring him along when terms were agreed with Hanoi. But when the secret talks with Le Duc Tho produced a draft set aside the exclusion of con-agreement in October, Thien was angry and recalcitrant. He blocked all the carefully made plans, even though Nixon had cabled Hanol on Oct, 21 that "the text of the agreement could be considered complete."

In a major move to appease Thieu, the United States immediately began rushing $1 billion in new military equipment to him. On Nov. 20, in a fresh round of talks with Le Duc Tho, Kissinger read "for the record" a South Vietnamese document demanding 69 changes in the text. At that point, according to Szulc, the North Vietnamese began looking as if they had cold feet about the whole thing. That vas hardiv surprising, after th United States had set out to transform the battlefield situation and inject new issues into the talks.

Only then did Hanol propose textual changes of its own. Kissinger denounced them as perfidious. The Christmas bombing began. By the time it ended, Thieu was much more agreeable.

Many outside observers of the truce negotiations have felt all along that the Christmas bombing was designed mainly to bring Saigon along. We know that the bombing had no measurable effect on the terms reached with Hanoi. because the text signed in January was virtually identical with the October draft. Reading the Szulc study, one perceives an even more cynical possibility: Kissinger may have tabled Saigon's demands on Nov. 20—demands that he knew were unacceptable -precisely in order to provoke in "Impeachment: Beware the Quagmire" (IHT, May 28, Mr. Anthony Lewis stated the view that the courts should declare their lack of jurisdiction to proceed on any question relating to the impeachment process because. he wrote, "judges would be asked to decide something very likely beyond the proper limits of their power—a 'political question,' in the Supreme Court's phrase."

I have always been puzzled by this curiosity of American con stitutional law: the "political question" doctrine. First, the doctrine is curious because it is based on circular reasoning; po-litical questions are matters not soluble by the judicial process and matters not soluble by the judicial process are political questions. Second, the doctrine is curious because, like an accordion, it applies to more or less questions according to the contingent conditions of American political life. For example, issues concerning population inequalities in election districts were labeled "political questions" in Colegrove r. Green (1949). But, in Baker r. Carr (1962), the Supreme Court entered the field and started the long series of "reapportionment" cases.

In the same way, the seating or expulsion of a senator or representative was cited by scholars as an outstanding example of "political question". But in Powell v. McCormack (1969). the Supreme Court reviewed and

Impeachment Proce And Foreign Polic

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON .- A current White House conceit is that if Mr. Nixon walked across the Red Sea on his coming visit to the Near East, the press would cite the miracle as proof he couldn't swim. Discount the paranots about the press and that story asserts a measure of truth.

The truth is that foreign policy is not playing a big role in the impeachment proceedings. Despite the diversionary tactics of the President and his lawyers, the House Judiciary Committee is finally beginning to show determination to make a judgment on the merits. Abundant evidence shows how little foreign policy now weighs in the impeachment process. The disengagement arranged between Israel and Syria last week, for example, was a tremendous achievement. Everybody acknowiedged it—and gave all the credit to Henry Kissinger.

'No-Win Summit'

Even the coming visit to the Soviet Union is being discounted within the administration as a "no-win summit." The reasoning is that the best Mr. Nixon can get is an agreement advancing arms control. Such an accord would, of course, evoke widespread praise. But Mr. Nixon's chief hope in beating the impeachment rap lies with the conservative Southern Democrats and Western Republicans in the Senate. That is the group in the Congress most apt to be turned off by an arms control agreement with Russia

Foreign policy, to be sure, is not the only card the President has to play against imprachment. There is also the fight being waged by his special Watergate counsel, James St. Clair, in the courts and the Congress. Like any good defense lawyer, Mr. St. Clair is trying to tie up the case against his client in procedural conflicts. Last week it became apparent that abundant difficulties hedged the matter of the Watergate tapes which are now being sought by both Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the House Judiciary Committee.

Without exactly saying so, Mr. St. Clair has linked the two requests. A case testing the right of the special Watergate prosecutor to subpoens the tapes was accepted for early judgment Friday by the Supreme Court. Though Mr. St. Clair lost his petition to have the case first considered by an appeals court, he is well placed to make the argument that, as an employee of the executive branch, the special prosecutor cannot go against WASHINGTON.—A fundamental shift in Soviet strategy in the Middle East is now taking shape, partly as a result of the brilliant success of U.S. peacekeeping moves in Syria, Egypt and Israel, but partly dictated by deeper and longer-range Soviet interests.

Russian influence in the Middle East of Syria and Egypt is now at its lowest ebb since the 1967 Arah-Israeli war. But farther east, along the volatile rim of the Arabian Peransula and the crucial Persian Gulf oilproducing area leading up to Iraq, Soviet influence will soon he on the ascendant. Hence, the compass of the Kremlin's new Middle Eastern policy points to potentially dangerous new prob-lems in the Persian Gulf waterway, so vital to the United States as American oil supplies dwindle. Actually, the Kremlin, as view-ed both by Arabists and Kremvestment in Egypt, the result of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's masterful diplomacy. there is real Soviet potential in the gradual settlement of the basic Arab-Israeli dispute. The clearest gain for Moscow is the soon-to-be-opened Suez Canal, an event that has always been a precondition for the shift of major Soviet activity from the rim of the Mediterranean east to the Persian Gulf. Once the canal has been cleared and widened, Soviet naval vessels will have easy access to the Red Sea and around the Arabian Peninsula to the Persian Gulf. At one point, Senate hardliners, led by Democratic Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, seriously considered a carrotand-stick approach to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to block Soviet naval passage through a

NEW YORK, June 3 (NYT) - the precise factor that was toxic A statistical study of municipal to the heart, cadmium and antiwater supplies in 94 American cities has linked a corrosive factor in water to fatal heart attacks.

- According to the investigators who did the study, the corrosive factor exerts its greatest damage in soft water by attacking pipes. They said that it released metals in trace amounts that, over a period of decades, damages the heart and its arteries. The corrosive factor was cited by the investigators, Dr. Henry Schroeder, a physiologist at Dartmouth Medical School in Hanover, N.H., and Luke Kraemer. "Sound planning on our part will enable us to realize our aim of economic self-reliance in the near future," the new monarch said in an inauguration address to an audience of Bhutanese and foreign visitors in Thimphu's Changlimethang Stadium. Asking his people to look for ways to serve Bhutan, he said: "Some httle effort on people's part would be much more effective than a great deal of effort on the part of the government.

Although he declared that economic independence will be a primary goal of his reign King Wangchuck expressed thanks for aid from foreign countries, "including the greatest assistance from our good friend India." Florida Bar Owner Dies of Grief.

Wife Says, After Fatal 'Gin Duel'

rokt walton beach. Fig., June 3 (AP).—Grief over claims that he was responsible for the drinking deaths of two men has killed bar owner Claude Kidd, his widow said.

"It upset him that they were saying something that he wasn't guilty of," Catherine Kidd said yesterday, two days after her husband died of a heart strack. Mr. Kidd, 52, had a history of heart trouble.

Mr. Kidd had "officiated" at a Memorial Day "gin due!" staged at his bar between Walter Wade, 39, and Eugene Cole. 32. Both men died within two days of the drinking bout, in WASHINGTON, June 3 (NYT). -Trade between the United States and China will reach $1.25 billion by the end of 1974, thus either equaling or surpassing Soviet-American trade according to Commerce Department predic-

To underline this dramatic development. Huang Chen, chief of China's liaison office in the United States, and other senior Chinese officials made their first public appearances tonight at a trade dinner in Washington.

The significance of Mr. Huang's public appearance was twofold: it tended to undercut speculations that current political uncertainties in China were adtersely affecting ues with Washington, and it served as a reminder about continuing Sino-American bonds less than a month before President Nixon's trip to Moscow.

The persistent surge in Sino-American trade, up $500 million from 1973, seems to indicate that whatever the meaning of present power struggles in Peking, relations with the United States are not a principal issue.

Balance of Trade

In the first third of this year. Chinese-American trade totaled $441 million, while the Soviet-American total was $36 million. And while the United States held a 2-to-1 edge in its trade balances with the Soviet Union it kept, a better than 10-to-1 advantage over China

For 1974, Chinese exports to the United States may total $100 million, whereas American exports to China will reach $1.15 billion. "The trade imbalance is a sore point with the Chinese," a Com-

Death Toll to 27 As Pakistan Riots Enter Fifth Day

LAHORE. Pakistan, June 3 AP .- The death toll rose to 27 and the number of arrests to about 2,000 as religious riots continued into the fifth day in Pakistan authoritative source, i.ere

Because of a government ban on detailed news reporting of the riots designed to cool religious tension, no official information on the extent of the disturbances was available.

But sources said that rioting continued in Punjab Province. Tens of thousands of orthodox Moslems in the Punjab, and to a lesser extent in Pakistan's three other provinces, are known to have participated in riots against the extreme Qadianis Moslem sect, the sources said.

The riots were touched off last week when 5.000 Qadianis reportedly dragged 200 medical students from a train at Rabwah, the sect's stronghold in the Punjab, and beat them. A week earlier, the students had chanted anti-Qudianis slogans while passing through the town.

Since theu, orthodox Moslems have retaliated by killing Qudianis, burning their mosques and ransacking and looting their homes and businesses.

Although he is only 22 years old Jean-Claude Duvalier inc President for bic, has already demonstrated his grasp of the politics of survival by purging the regime of overambilious or potentially threatening elements. He has also gained pushinge among representatives of foreign governments and international perclopment agencies by emphastang the need to attack the country's critical economic and social problems.

Foreign tourists, who were trightened away by the Duvalier trgmie in the 1960s, are now flocking to Haiti in record numpers, while many Haitian exiles have returned home.

Even some Haitiaus who were uncompromising opponents of "Papa Doc" Duvalier now convice that young Duvalier has improved the political atmosphere since his father's death on April 21, 1971. "He's a serious young man who seems to be trying hard" a politically independent Haitian said.

Debate Is Possible

Open criticism of the government is still not heard and would he unwise. There is now little risk, however, in discussing the government's shortcomings private or even debating economiic and social problems in public. But while political repression has eased and the economy is beginning to recover from a decade of stagnation, the Duvaher family has permitted no more challenges to its monopoly of power than did the late dictator during his violent 14-year rule of this tiny black republic.

Opposition parties are still banned and Jean-Claude and his influential mother, Mrs. Simone Ovide Duvaher, have nevertheless quickly smothered any emerging power groups within the regime itsen. Adopting the factics of his father, the young President has also made frequent cabinet changes, so that no ad-

Although at least 150 political prisoners are still held in the Fort Dimanche prison, most have been there since the previous regime. Miss Hopson, 24, made judicial history this spring in protocolprone Belgium by becoming the first foreigner to be admitted to practice before the Belgian bar. "It took some work," said Miss Hopson. "I got my docteur en droit from the Brussels Free University in June, 1973, but the bar association wouldn't admit me last September: Not only was I a woman (that, in itself, was bad) but I was a foreign citizen as well. It took me half a year to get ft established and recognized that there is nothing in the constitu-

Mattre Hopson was born in Dothan, Ala, a small town south of Montgomery near the Florida border. She came to Brussels in 1962 with her Belgian-born mother. Her father, Edison Hopson, a retired U.S. Army officer with a World War II European record, chose to settle at Atlantic Beach, near Jacksonville, Fla. Miss Hopson decided to retain her U.S. citizenship.

OPERA IN FLORENCE

Admirable 'Girl of the Golden West'

By William Weaver

PLORISICE, June 3 (IHT). Cof Poscini's major operas, "The Girl of the Golden West" is surely the least frequently performed; and yet—as the Florentine revival which opened Saturday night at the Teatro Comunale amply demonstrated it is one of his richest and most Ironically, this clusive, nuanced music is wed to the least subtle of librettos, Still the Puccini magic works in a good per-formance, and the listener suspends disbelled in order to suffer with Minnie until she bas triumphantly won her reformed bandit and outloxed the wily, amorous sheriff. This Florence performance was good indeed one of the high points of this year's Maggio Musicale. No doubt the festival planned this revival because this year marks the 50th anniversary of the composer's death; the commence tion was apt and admirable.

Much of the merit for this success belongs to the conductor Gianandrea Gavazzeni, who with his many writings as well as with his distinguished work in the opera house—has long esponsed the somewhat unfashionable cause of verismo opers. His conviction was constantly evident last night, not a detail of the score escaped him, every hus of its many colors was sensitively evidenced. The drams was tautly, wood forest finale. The Maggio's erchestra was clearly inspirplayed with particular precision and beauty of tone.

The singers also rose to the occasion. Orianna Santunione does not have a specially beautiful or flexible voice, but she has power and passion, and with these assets she created a Minnie who was both real and moving. The tenor, Giorgio Casellato Lamberti, is an uneven artist, but he, too, was in top form; the voice has a fine clarion ring, but he also succeeded in emphasizing the lyrical, polgnant aspect of his character, and his last-act aria was properly applauded. The veteran baritone Guseppe Taddel was a fine, human, almost sympathetic villain.

The production was designed and staged by Sylvano Bussotti, the well known avant-garde composer. Fortimately Bussotti con-ceived his production as a kind

American Pianists

The U.S. planists Arthur Gold and Robert Fizdale are giving a series of five 6:30 p.m. recitals at the Theatre de la Ville, Paris, June 4-8. Their program includes the sonate dedicated to them by Francis Poulenc, as well as music by Satie, Debussy and Milhaud. Also at the Theatre de la Ville this month; the Orchestre Philharmonique de Strasbourg. In their first-ever Paris appearance, Girl of the Golden West" is not ed by Gavazzeni's vision, and it a work that lends itself to functful variations. Only occasionally there were some bizarre lighting effects (the Sierra Madre turned red when Minnie saved Dick's life at the end of Act II), but for the rest there was realistic, visible snow, and a live-if somewhat placid-horse, Bussotti also moved the chorus skillfully, and even managed to characterize slightly the many small roles, which were all well sung.

The festival program this past weekend also included two concerts of exceptional interest, given by the Gewandhaus Or-chestra of Leipzig, paying its first visit to the Maggio. On Friday night, in the Comunale, Kurt Masur conducted Mabler's "Wayfarer Songs" (with the sensitive, musical young baritone Siegfried Lorenz) and a profoundly felt, splendidly balanced reading of the Bruckner Ninth Symphony. Masur's exceptional feeling for orchestral balance and his carefully calculated dynamics served him in good stead on Saturday afternoon, when he and the orchestra moved to the acoustically tricky Basilica di San Lorenzo. Again the program was not easy: Reger's Mozart variations, the Berg Violin Concerto (with the orchestra's own Manfred Scherzer as the first-rate soloist), and Janacek's "Taras Bulba." artistry of Masur and his laborators triumphed over San Lorenzo's resonance, and the concert was a major event of TOKYO (WP)—Three unusual women recently held a frank public seminar on the unliberated women of modern Japan.

A politician (Ryoko Ozawa), a photographer (Ruiko Yoshida) and the founder of a league to further birth control (Missko Enoki) held forth for two hours before the foreign correspondents club. They made it clear that so far as they are concerned, the women of this country have a long way to go before achieving amic or social equality.

Thanks to the U.S. occupation, women have political suffrage and theoretical equality here and actually comprise about 5 percent more of the vote in elections than men, according to city councilwoman Ryoko Ozawa of Urawa City, a suburb of Tokyo.

In everyday life, however, the wages of working women average 48 percent of those of men, she 10,000 Japanese lawyers, 4,000 women among 120,000 medical doctors, less than 600 women among 23,000 college professors and about 30 women among the 1,500 people who passed the higher level civil service examination

But Japanese women do not have to go to those forced parties and smile to people that she doesn't like-the bar hostesses do that job for her," she said.

Misako Enoki, founder of the Women's Liberation League Opposing the Anti-Abortion Bill and Demanding Legal Use of the Pill, found it ironic that bar hoste are in on the executive talk over drinks at which many corporate decisions are formed-but female staff members of the companies involved are usually given no part in and no advance know-the "second wife" of Prime Min-ister Kakuel Tanaka (who has kept a mistress and second family for many years) can know political decisions before anyone else in the country, and thus could be extremely helpful to the cause of women's rights.

A former medical student at Kyoto University, Enoki has been engaged in the battle against a proposed change in Japanese law to outlaw abortions obtained for economic reasons. She is also attempting to gain full legalization of contraceptive pills, which in theory are permitted here only for medical reasons and not for contraception.

Men fear that to free women from the fear of pregnancy be-fore marriage would be to impair the formidable strength of the family system underlying Japanese society. But Enoki feels that birth control options are necessary to eliminate the burdens of nnwanted children as well as to ready crowded Japanese islands. The discussion offered new evidence that not all of Japan's

Not, I think, since the great international surrealist exhibition in London in the mid-1930s has there been such a collection of first-rate surrealism in Britain Twenty surrealists are represented in this show of more than 60 works, which includes no less than 12 examples of Dali and eight of Magritte. Leonar Fini is represented by seven works, including the hauntingly beautiful Losange Testa Virile; Chirico by a classic of his metaphysical paintings "Le Philosophe" (1926); and Ernet by his celebrated "Authropomorphic Figure" of 1932, formerly in Sir Michael Sadler's collection. When it is added that there is a superb major Delvaux, as well as five of his drawings and watercolors: two good Picabias; two Tanguys of some importance, and two Matlas which serve to remind us of how ex-cellent a painter he is, it will become obvious that this is an exhibition worth a good deal of

Lockheed and Textron In Financial Accord

BURBANK, Calif., June 3 (AP). -A tentative refinancing plan designed to save Lockheed Aireraft Corp. from bankrupicy would have a Rhode Island conglomerate buy 45 percent of the financially troubled aerospace giant, it was announced today.

The announcement said Lockheed, the country's largest defense contractor, would receive a new investment of $100 million, $85 million of which would come from Textron Inc., the Rhode Island concern. Textron chairman William Miller would replace Daniel Haughton as Lockheed obsirman, and Mr. Raughton would be vice-chairman,

The plan drew the immediate support of Treasury Secretary William Simon, who said it could give Lockheed a new and solid future, The Pentagon, which last year had $1.7 billion in contracts with Lockheed, said it had no objections to the plan, which is not a merger or consolidation.

The plan, which would take effect on Nov. 30 if various provisions are fulfilled, includes a restructuring of Lockheed's huge debt, which amounts to more than $850 million.

It calls for Textron to buy 12 million new common shares of Lockheed at $5 a share and $25 million of a new Lockheed preferred stock, for a total of

vestment would be provided by offering three million new common shares to present Lockheed

One condition of the arrangement is that Lockheed's 24 lending banks must convert $275 million of the company's present million bank debt into the new Lockheed preferred stock. They would also have to confirm a bank credit to Lockheed of $375 million. One of the main purposes of the plan is to prop up Lockheed's sluggish Li011 TriStar jumbo jet program, on which the firm's existence is said to depend.

For the plan to go into effect. Lockheed would have to have a total of 180 firm orders for by Nov. 30, including the 135 firm orders that is already has. So far, 66 of the wide-bodied jets have been deliv-

Mr. Simon said the plan could mean elimination of the government's controversial aid program. Under that program, the gov-ernment guaranteed to repay up to $250 million in commercial loans to Lockheed. As of a month ago, Lockheed had borrowed $200 million under the program, but "When the SEC says $224 million, it's talking about $224 million it can specifically earmark. There are large blocks of money that haven't been traced yet. In addition, money is being continually dissipated. Huge amounts are now going to lawyers in the form of monthly or weekly retainers.

Mr. Cornfeld, released on bail in April after spending 11 months in a Geneva jail, was interviewed at his new base of operations, the 40-room Douglas Fairbanks man-

How He Did It Here is Mr. Cornfeld's explanation of how the $224 million was taken from IOS:

"It was quite simple and not at all brilliant. We had two fiduciary banks, Credit Suisse and Bank of New York. The job of Bank of New York was to hold the securities. The job of Credit Suisse was to hold the cash.

No doubt about it—providing, of course, that they conform to certain basic criteria:

- The stones delivered must have a minimum caliber of one corat. - A formal certificate must cover the following key points:

Weight

 Exact dimensions Quality of the cutting

 Color Purity

— An efficient service allows an investor to realize, with a minimum delay, the current value of his diamond or diamonds.

Food Price Rise Slows

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP-DJ) -Retail prices of all con-sumer goods rose faster than retail food prices in eight of 10 world capitals, according to data compiled in mid-May by the foreign agriculture service.

Wallin Spf WisEl 7.75pf

The service said that for the first time in more than 12 months food price indices in rising prices of all consumer goods.

The latest average monthly consumer price index increase was 1.3 percent and the overall food price index boost averaged only 0.9 percent. The average yearly increments for the consumer price index and food price index in 10 capitals were 12.6 and 148 percent respectively,

Prices in the latest survey by the agriculture service were characterized by generally lower quotes for mest, poultry, eggs and bread, and higher prices for butter, cheese, fruits and vege-sumer price indices are based on 1970 equaling 100. The survey covered the United States, Canada, Japan, Britain, Denmark, West Germany, Italy, Belgium the Netherlands and France.

U.K. Firms Plan To Invest Less

LONDON, June 3 (Reuters) .-British industry's future investment plans are at their lowest level for 12 years, according to a government survey.

An annual survey by the Department of Industry showed that 48 percent of Britain's 250 major companies plan to cut back in investment this year and next.

Only 25 percent of the firms intended to increase investment. the survey said.

The Department of Industry's survey also showed that industry's investment for the first quarter of this year was about £504 million—about the same level as the final quarter of last

Italian Prices Jump ROME, June 3 (AP-DJ). Italy's index of wholesale prices rose to 160.9 in February (1970 equals 100), up a record 6.5 per-cent from January, the government statistics bureau reported today. The rise from February, 1973, was 33.5 percent.

Japan Investment Companies Are Bullish on Stock Market

TOKYO, June 3 (AP-DJ).-Despite the high interest rates and raging inflation which buffet the Japanese economy, the counpanies are bullish on stocks.

In 1973, these institutions were net sellers of Japanese stocks at a total of $225 million. However, in the first four months of 1974. investment companies made net purchases of about $220 million. Although buying may slow down this summer as fund managers await the results of national elections in July and the government's post-election economic policies, some observers expect net purchases of stocks for the full year to range between $400

The bullish attitude of Japanese investors puzzles many foreign money managers here. Eetween October 1973 and February 1974, net sales of Japanese stocks by foreigners exceeded $600 million. Although some European money recently has begun to trickle back to the market. U.S. investment managers maintain a wait-andsee attitude.

The Japanese money managers' optimism stems from both technical and fundamental factors. Despite the government's tight money policies, investment companies still have quite a bit of cash. Moreover, the percentage of their portfolios invested in common stocks is well below levels reached in the 1969-72 bull percent of investment assets is in common against 55.5 percent in 1971 and 59.4 percent the fol-

Then, too, last January the gorernment asked all institutional investors to aid the nation's balance of payments by restrain-ing their buying of foreign securitles. As a result, the funds have concentrated on domestic issues, thereby contributing to an upsurge in the Tokyo stock index.

Perhaps most importantly, long-term corporate bonds peaked earlier this spring, with yields averaging 12 percent. Currently. Hence, the competitive pull of bonds for investment funds has lessened semewhat.

The Bank's net profit for the financial year ended December 31, 1973 was 6.617 million lire compared with 6,116 million lire for the previous year. Deposits went up 27 % to a total of 9,064 billion lire while loans and advances rose only 12% to an aggregate of 4,400 billion, a development which is to be viewed also in the light of the selective credit control measures taken by the Italian monetary authority.

Further significant progress was again made in the Bank's international business activity which provided a considerable addition to earnings from interest margins. That the Bank could further strengthen its traditional leading position in the import and export sphere as well as in the foreign exchange market was also due to its own world-wide organization, further reinforced in 1973 by the opening of four new representative Offices (Moscow, Madrid, Beirut and Los Angeles).

in the Securities field the Bank actively participated in all the new lire bond issues, heading three out of the eight that were made, as well as in public and private placements of company shares. Despite the shrinking of the « euro-issues », the Bank succeeded in maintaining its activity in the primary market at the previous year's level.

WIDOW

SORRY," said the letter from the rich politician, whom Lynn Caine had met once at a party, "I cannot comply with your request." No wonder, the request wasn't rational. Mrs. Caine, newly widowed with two small children to bring up, had nonetheless thought the politician might actually send her $500.000. She knew just how the check would look: bright yellow with the amount typed in.

It was too soon for her to realize that she was temporarily insane, a state she has since learned afflicts all widows. All she knew when she wrote that letter was that she needed a lot more money than her salary and pensions provided and she needed a new supply of friends. Her old ones, those with whom she and her husband Martin had had implicit treaties for the exchange of comfort and support, were suddenly treating her like a parian. "Cancer" and "death" were words they preferred not to consider; so Lynn wasn't asked to the Sunday-after-Thanksgiving supper she and Martin had gone to together for the last 10 years.

"Being a widow," Lynn Caine found, "is like living in a country where nobody speaks your language." Wives figured she was after their husbands. Husbands figured she was desperate for sex, when what she really lusted after was sleep. Morning after morning she would waken before dawn, adding embittered notes to an embittered journal. Will I ever like myself again? Will I ever find serenity? Tomorrow, see Lynn Caine put through the wringer. Will she cope? See the next installment of 'On The Rack' brought to you by . . . those wonderful folks who gave you Strike Martin Dead with Cancer."

Such prose suggests the world of copywriting flackery, which in fact is Mrs. Caine's profession. As a publishing house's publicity manager, it is her business to get messages across crisply. Too crisply. In fragments. Like this. Loath to impose too much burden on our attention spans, she is obviously trying to avoid the cangers inherent in accounts of widowhood, She doesn't want to sound lugubrious, as Caitlin Thomas was in "Leftover Life to Kill," or maudlin (like Catherine Marshall in "To Live Again"). Her resulting fronic terseness can Hear her out. And don't tr be abrasive, but what matters more is that she tells a grim story

ROME, June 3 (UPI).-Bjorn game of the final set. Then,

Borg of Sweden defeated defending champion Hie Nastase of Romania today to win the Italian Tennis Championship,

Playing with only two hours' rest after winning his semifinal match over Argentina's Guillermo Viles, Borg gave Nastase a lesson in passing shots which left the Romanian shaking his hands

For Borg, who will be 18 on June 16, the title is his first major grand prix circuit championship.

The final breakthrough for Borg came in the seventh game of the third set. Nastase went down 0-40, giving the Swede three break points. Nastase then doublefaulted to give Borg the

"I only knew I would really win at 5-2 of the third set," Borg

"I think I played very well here," Borg said, "But to win a championship takes a lot of luck. Also I think Nastase was tired. But my play went very well to-

Borg said he ate a steak and then rested during the two hours between the fifth set of his semifinal and the start of the final. He also said that he had been more worried in his cliff-hanger semifinal with Vilas than during his match against Nastase.

The Swede sewed up the semi-final in the 11th game of the fifth set-which had been suspended yesterday because of darkness—when he finally broke Vilas's service on the Argentine's two errors at the net. Borg won the semifinal, 3-6, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4,

"I was more worried in the match with Vilas," Borg said. "He was playing very well. We play lot alike and he is an excellent player. He was putting a lot of topspin on the ball. I was fortunate to win it."

Broke Service

In the final, Borg broke Nastase in the Romanian's first service and then served out to take the In the second, Nastase rallied and took his attack to the net, winning the first and third games at love. The two traded service breaks twice in the fifth through the eighth games, but in the ninth game Borg held three break points in hand and finally converted on the third by passing to Nastase with his doublefisted backhand. Borg broke Nastase in the first

'Rabbit' Tops Veterans at Kemper Open Menne Is Golf Victor In Playoff With Heard

By John S. Radosta

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 3 (NYT).—Bob Menne, a struggling golf pro who had to qualify his way into the Kemper Open, won that tournament yesterday of shooting a 67 to tie Jerry Heard and then defeated him on the first hole in a sudden-death play-off.

Menne, one of the pro tour's "rabbits" — nonexempt players who must qualify for individual tournaments-tied Reard after 72 holes at 270, 18 under par, breaking Tom Weiskopf's record by stroke. Heard automatically placed second after losing the play-off.

Daye Hill shot a final round of 65 to take third place at 271, and Lee Trevino, leader at the 36-hale mark, finished fourth at 272 Billy Casper, former U. S. Open and Masters champion, tied with J. C. Snead at 273. Heard had started the day with a 3-stroke lead over Trevino and Meone, and naturally the pressure was on them to catch Trevino did not, but Menne while Heard was shooting

Menne's victory rested on two emicial putts. The first was a six-loot birdie on the 18th green of the closing round, which forced the tie with Heard. The second was a double-break 25foot putt on the 15th green, the first and only hole of the playa project started this year by the Tournament Players Division of the Professional Golfers Associa-tion to create financially attractive events by requiring leading stars to take part in them. The first such tournament, the

Siderowl Performs Well

GULLANE, Scotland, June 3 'UPI: - Dick Siderowf of Westport. Conn. began the defense of his British amateur match-play golf title with a masteriperformance on the gale-swept Muirfield links today. The 36-year-old stockbroker disposed of Irishman Perry Malone by 5 and 3 to ease into the second round, winning six of the first nine holes which he covered in only 34 strokes-two under par. But most of his lesser-known colleagues in the 58-man U.S. contingent battling for the coveted title, were struggling to hold their game in the cold, northwesterly wind.

Warren Dailey, a 41-year-old steel executive from Madison, Wis.. did succeed and joined Siderowf in the second round with a 4 and 3 victory over another American, Mark Jones of Minneapolis.

asked. "Well, you see, a couple of years ago things were very dull in Washington and there wasn't much to Buchwald cept impoundment and the SALT talks. So I decided to do something to jazz up the column. One day I was walking by the Water-gate and I thought to myself,

Wouldn't it be a gas if the Republicans bugged the headquarters of the Democratic party?" "When did you think of this?" "Sometime in June of 1972. I thought it would make a very funny column. At first I decided to have one man bug the Democrats, but then I got worried that some people might take me seriously so I decided to make it seven. It seemed more outrageous to have seven people get involved in something that stupid."

"No one in their right mind would have believed it," the psychiatrist agreed.

"Well, the column was a big hit, so I decided to follow it up with another funny column about the Committee to Re-Elect the President being involved in the break-in, including the former attorney general of the United States. 'I recall the piece. It was very amusing, particularly the part about all the money that was spent on the campaign," the psychiatrist said.

Well, you can't imagine the different from anything coming follow-up column where I just let my imagination go wild. I traced the break-in to the White House. I invented several characters whom I called H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, John Dean and Charles Colson. I decided it would be very funny if one of the characters, John Dean, blew the whistle on the President of the United States."

"Weren't you afraid some peo-ple would believe you?" the psychietrist asked.

"There is always the danger when you're writing satire that a few people will take you seriously. But since I was talking about the President, I was certain no one in his right mind would accept the tale as anything but pure fiction. Anyone with any brains would have to know the whole thing was a big put-on, Frankly I wanted to stop the gag right there, but I had so many requests for further installments that I had no choice but to continue the series.

"I was really stuck as to how to make the thing even more outlandish until one day I was fooling around with my daughter's tape machine and suddenly I got the wildest idea of all. I decided to write that the President had taned all his conversations in the White House and that these tapes would implicate him in the Watergate scandal. I said with tongue in cheek, of course, that the evidence would lead to his impeachment

"I remember that column." said the psychiatrist, "and frankly I thought you had gone too far. "Well." I said defensively, "some people thought it was funny."

"All right then." the psy-chiatrist said. "What seems to be the problem?"

"Just this. Everyone is stealing my story. Like an idiot I never copyrighted it, and now every time you pick up a paper or turn on the TV they're using my characters and plot. I invented all those people. THEY BELONG TO ME. WATERGATE NEVER HAPPENED EXCEPT IN MY MIND. DOCTOR, YOU HAVE TO

"Here's a prescription for some Valium, We'll talk more about it 'Secret History of Streaking'—a scholarly study of some historical incidents.

Queen Victoria Couldn't Believe Her Eyes

By Tom Donnely

WASHINGTON (WP).—Recently a Portsmouth, R.L. motel owner charged that a couple of dozen Boston cops, on the eve of a police parade, ran naked through his Ramada Inn nightclub and behaved so obstreperously as to cause $1,000 worth of damage. The Houston branch of the American Legion, upon discovering that a 14-year-old boy up for a good citizenship award had streaked at a private party, struck his name from the list of candidates

These incidents have not been a source of comfort to Richmond Peek, who has been working for some time on "A Secret History of Streaking." He believes that the streaking craze is pretty well spent and by the time his book could be published it would have little, if any, topical value.

Peek says that he takes no interest whatever in the topical angle; but his moneyminded publishers do, and they have developed cold feet. The situation is, as they say in literary circles, fraught with irony. For Peek has not been concerned with the naked didoes of college kids and other contemporary seekers after the media spotlight. His book is a serious scholarly study of historical incidents that involved streaking, but were previously explained away as embracing other phenomena. Why has streaking in other eras gonc largely undetected and unreported?

Unbelievable

Peck says that it hasn't gone undetected: It has gone unreported because the participants and bystanders either did not believe their eyes or, out of prudery, fear, shame, and acute embarrassment, pretended not "And to be sure," said Peek, "the media were a totally different kettle of fish when Queen Victoria, to pick a name at random, was alive and being streaked. "There was no way the journals of her time could have published that story. No

Peek says he has pieced together the tale of the assault on Victoria's sensibilities from numerous records, diaries, and documents, official and otherwise, some of them swathed in deliberate obscurities of language. The incident occurred during the diamond jubilee festivities. As the queen's carriage passed Hyde Park Corner, a dozen stark naked Oxford youths, much the worse for wine, broke through the lines of police and troops guarding the route and ran alongside the carriage shouting an invitation to the queen to look upon what she had never admitted could exist, nature in the raw. They sang nursery rhymes like "Ding dong bell, pussy's in the well" and cavorted idiotically for several moments before they disappeared, leaving behind a shattered police force, a frozen military, and a stricken public. The members of the queen's party were in shock.

"I can't believe they streaked Queen Victoria," I said. "I just can't."
"Neither could Queen Victoria," said Peek. "She said the finest moment of her day was when those roughly dressed laboring men broke past the police at Hyde Park Corner and ran beside her carriage chanting, 'Go it, old girl! You've done it well!' The words were most unsuitable, she said, but oh so gratifying! You see, her powerful built-in censor, per-haps the most powerful any individual ever had, translated a lascivious sight into a seemly one. And such was the strength of her personality that everybody in her immediate kingdom wound up seeing what she thought she saw."

The pages of U.S. history are streaked with streakers, Peek says. During the presidential campaign in 1876, political foes sought to drive Rutherford B. Hayes into oblivion by hiring girls of ill or no repute to run in and out of his hotel room, haifnaked. This was at the centernial exhibition at Philadelphia, where Hayes was to make personal appearances and give speeches. The plan backfired inasmuch as half-naked girls were running in and out of practically all the hotel rooms in Philadelphia at the time and the activity in the vicinity of the Hayes suite attracted no attenion and caused no scandal.

Hayes, however, became convinced the girls were an apparition, a manifestation of the DTs, caused by his constant indulgence in wild cherry tonic, a popular patent medicine of the day. Hayes had aiready sworn off obviously alcoholic bev-erages; now he abandoned all tonics, and what is more, vowed that not only would he drink no wine in the White House, he would not allow anyone else to either. If it had not been for those Philadelphia streakers, Peek says, Mrs. Hayes might not have wound up with the nickname "Lemonade Lucy.'

Peck believes that if a band of streakers, probably members of an obscure religious sect, had not suddenly appeared before a distinguished vacationer in the Black Hills of North Dakots, the distinguished vaca-tioner would not have made a remark which is, in Peek's estimation, the single most misunderstood off-the-cuff remark ever made by a U.S. president, and the one with the weightiest consequences. When Calvin Coolidge said "I do not choose to run," he was only turning down an invitation to strip and streak.

The prissy critics went into shock at the Paris premiere of "Carmen" in 1875. They found this gutsy opera improper, if not downright lewd, and it seems that one reviewer all but threatened the sexy lead, Galli-Marie, with the police. Peek maintains that actually the critics were scandalized because a certain crazed baritone who had been turned down for the part of Escamillo, the toreador, streaked the stage during the most crucial musical moments. He later claimed that he thought the Opera-Comique was holding auditions for "Aids" and that was why he turned up in that Egyptian jock strap.

Abbey Theatre

One of the most celebrated of theatrical uproars took place in 1907, when John Millington Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World" premiered at Dublin's Abbey Theatre. The play was an insult to Ireland and Irishmen, if the rioting audiences were to be believed. And this was another case of streakers causing devilment? Peek said that he had suspected this for a brief time, but research showed that in this instance the longaccepted story of why these theatergoers had lost their minds was the true one. "It was that unholy reference to women's underwear that made them scream with shock and shame and break the place up. said Peek. "You know the moment in the second act where Christy says to the Widow Quinn, 'It's Pegeen I'm seeking only, and what'd I care if you brought me a drift of chosen females, standing in their shifts...'? It was that word 'shifts' that Peek's next book, after he recovers from his present discouragement, will be either History of Prudery" this publishers think prudery is bound to come back) or "A History of Underwear," if it looks like the nostalgia market will hold up for an-
